TORT

Ireland:

A professional man owes a duty both in contract and in tort to his/her clients

A professional man owes a duty both in contract and in tort to his/her clients

Did the professional act in a manner accepted as proper by a competent body of professional opinion?

This is the Bolam Test

The knowledge required of an architect will generally be judged by the standard of the ordinary competent architect.

“A fair, reasonable and competent degree of skill”

However if an architect carries out the job of quantity surveyor he or she will be judged by the standards of a reasonably competent quantity surveyor.

Typical Examples of Negligence in Tort:

- Inadequate examination of sites
- Errors in Design
- Providing a misleading estimate
- Errors in preparation of Bill of Quantities
- Failing to take reasonable steps in selecting contractors
- Insufficient knowledge & non-compliance with planning & Building Regulations legislation
- Incorrect certification

Ireland:

The jurisdiction of the Circuit Court is for claims under €38,092.14 and the jurisdiction of the Commercial Court is for any claims over €1,000,000. All other claims fall within the remit of the High Court.

Statute of Limitations:

Statute of Limitations:

The general limitation period for actions in contract and tort is six years

In relation to both contract and tort, the relevant provisions of the Statute of Limitations, 1957 provide for a limitation period of “six years from the date on which the cause of action accrued”.

In Tort there are 3 categories:

- 1. Actionable – at the moment of the ‘wrong’ eg defamation*
- 2. Continuing – eg trespassing*
- 3. Single – eg negligence where a cause of action accrues upon the plaintiff suffering damage*

Statute of Limitations:

“it is not the latent defect which needs to be capable of discovery: it is the subsequent physical damage caused by that latent defect”

Damage is “manifest” when it is capable of being discovered, regardless of whether it has or has not been discovered or ought to have been discovered.

The 6 years therefore runs from the manifestation of damage, rather than of the underlying defect.

The manifestation of damage requirement may extend their liability period well beyond 6 years post completion of a project.
